
Dee's Journal – Hong Kong – by Dee Bird – 4/1/09

...I did three miles in a hurricane force wind on the deck this morning as we sailed into Hong Kong harbor. What a struggle. At one point when I was on the bow deck, it took me three minutes to run about 20 feet. I was literally running in place against the wind. It was funny. When I reached the next door I went inside, as I thought I might be flung overboard if the wind shifted!

We have now docked in Kowloon, at what must be one of the most amazing port locations in the world. My cabin is on the harbor side, looking out to Hong Kong Island, and when the weather clears, we will have a beautiful view of Victoria Peak. We will travel tomorrow to Guilin – the land that is the epitome of Chinese paintings. Lots of adventures still ahead... and then, in six weeks or so, I will be back on The Land...

Lots of love – Dee
